Advertising Policy

The mission of the California Association for Behavior Analysis (CalABA) is to promote the science and practice of behavior analysis. Any material it posts, disseminates, prints, or circulates, whether to its own members or to others, must be congruent with this mission and with the Behavior Analyst Certification Board's Guidelines for Responsible Conduct (available under "Policies" at www.calaba.org). Presentations at the annual CalABA conference (addresses, symposia, panel discussions, posters, workshops) are to be devoted to scholarly, scientific, and professional content rather than advertising or marketing services, products, materials, job openings, or the like. Conference presenters who wish to advertise or sell services, books, manuals, test materials, software, hardware, audio or visual material, or employment opportunities must do so via an exhibit booth, an advertisement in the conference program guide, at the job fair at the conference, and/or through other suitable CalABA advertising outlets. This policy applies to all advertising matters and materials (job postings, advertisements, flyers, brochures, conference program guides, conference exhibits, etc.). All applications for advertising are reviewed by the CalABA Advertising Committee, which reserves the right to accept or reject any materials at its discretion and without explanation. Submission of an application to advertise with CalABA constitutes agreement with this policy.
